Intellectual property enforcement in virtual worlds

Date: July 22, 2008

Time: 12 noon (Pacific Daylight Time)

Location: SLBA Office

Register: <http://tinyurl.com/57b6xl>

Second Life provides its users tools to create and market their own "in-world" content, frequently leading to alleged violations of intellectual property rights. These claims are complicated by potential application of various international jurisdictions. Ms. Franklin will discuss international harmonization of copyright and trademark laws, and how attorneys can help their clients enforce both registered and unregistered rights in intellectual property.

Tamiko Franklin is the Director of International Legal Services for Matijevich Law Offices. She earned her Juris Doctor and Master of Intellectual Property degrees from Franklin Pierce Law Center. Ms. Franklin's publication credits include contributions to Managing Intellectual Property, IP Value, Informa, and INTA Bulletin.
